Our German Citizens.

Sometimes when we have visited the County, we have been edified by hearing our goodly village decried at a great rate. "A rough, drinking, brutal place," is the good name they circulate about us, and then they add, "there are so many Dutch there that it is no wonder!" Now we will say one word about this. We have a great many German Citizens here, but a more orderly, quiet, and civil class of citizens, no place was ever honored with. We have often been led to remark that our German fellow-townsmen are very intelligent, and a genteel, and refined class of persons. They possess generally a superior education, are mostly finished musicians, and if any bad reportd justly attaches to our town, it is not on their account. They are justly entitled to a good name.
